Jamaica suits most travel plans

Linda Coneybeare
Travel Plus

Jamaica mon' where everything is Irie, which is a Jamaican term for everything's good or all right. Last month I had the chance to slip away for a week all inclusive vacation to Jamaica. I had only previously been there on a cruise stop for a few hours so it was high on my list for Caribbean islands I've wanted to visit. This year we went to the Holiday Inn Sunspree in Montego Bay, which is conveniently located 10 km from the airport. This hotel is perfect for a family, or for a couple just looking to escape the harsh winter we had experienced all winter long.

The resort is mid-size with 520 rooms in seven buildings, all of which are no further than a five minute walk to the dining facilities and lobby. There are two pools, the main pool is where all of the families stay as there are always activities going on for the children, and then there is the adult pool and beach area at the far end of the resort, which is where we stayed all week. In most areas of Jamaica you will find that all of the resorts have small U shaped beaches, unless you go to Negril and stay along the seven mile beach. The Holiday Inn had six or seven small U shaped beaches, with plenty of loungers and shade palapas, and the Tek' It Easy Island, which was a small island in front of the resort. This seemed to be a popular area for families as the water is only as deep as your hips. I'm 5'6 so it was quite shallow, but an excellent area for the children to swim and play.

The food at the resort was excellent and had lots of different options for breakfast, lunch and dinner..they also had a burger stand, ice cream stand as well as a jerk chicken and pork hut! For evenings they have four a la carte restaurants. Our favourites were the Japanese show kitchen and the Italian which had the best filet mignon.

Easy day trips from Montego Bay would be to Negril for a sunset cruise or visit the world famous Rick's Café to watch the cliff divers. Dunns River Falls has always been a popular attraction where you get to climb up 600 ft of cascading waterfalls.

For those who want to check out where Bob Marley lived, you can take a trip to Kingston to visit his home. This is quite the trek though! We did not take part in any excursions this year as we just wanted to relax and lie on the beach. However, we did take an afternoon and go to Jimmy Buffet's Margaritaville in downtown Montego Bay which was only a 15 minute drive from the resort. Here we enjoyed the afternoon with a few margaritas while watching the sun go down as well as the giant waterslide which was a lot of fun!

With multiple non-stop flights to Montego Bay every week with Air Transat and other carriers, Jamaica is becoming an increasingly popular island for winter vacations, also a popular port of call for cruise lines. With over 50 resorts to pick from both all-inclusive and European plan (no food or drink) Jamaica is becoming an extremely popular island for destination weddings. Each resort offers something so different than the other everyone, and with exceptional food everyone is sure to have a great time!

So next winter, with the wind chill of -40C come on in and I will find the perfect Jamaica vacation for you! Next column will be about Linda's recent trip to France with her daughter Chloe. A week in the French Riviera visiting Nice and Monte Carlo, zas well as Aix en Provence, Avignon and Arles.

How to put bugs to good use

Living Large
Humour by Steve Galea

Last week, for the first time since last spring, I was harassed by those merciless bloodsuckers we all hope to avoid. But let's talk about more pleasant things than Revenue Canada – like mosquitoes and black flies, for instance.

Most people do not actually have good things to say about either but happen to think that's because we are only looking at ourselves as victims. I have found that with a little creativity, you can put those pesky biting insect to good use.

Here are 10 suggestions.

1. Relieving high blood pressure: If some occurrence, such as tax time, causes your blood pressure to be high, all you need to do is walk into a swamp at dusk or dawn to have it relieved by your friendly local mosquitoes.
2. Lawn maintenance: I don't have a leaf blower and hope I never will. But this year, I'm going to try crawling around on my lawn during mosquito and black fly season. I figure the wind from all their collective wing beats might end up blowing leaves around and if my blood levels hold out long enough for me to crawl in the right direction I might pile them up yet.
3. Levitation: Like most people, I always wondered how Peter Pan flew. My theory was either him having exceptionally bad gas or mosquitoes. Having experimented with the former, I'll try the latter this year. Essentially, I'm going to try to superglue a piece of thread to the mosquito that's biting me. Each of those threads will be attached to the harness I'll be wearing. I figure when two or three million mosquitoes are harnessed, I'll be able to fly to any tropic destination I want – like a blood bank.
4. Background noise: I have a teenage daughter and with that awesome responsibility comes the downside of hearing teenage daughter music. Luckily, I can always step outside in spring and have the mosquitoes drown it out for me.
5. Models for fly tying: I happen to tie a lot of fishing flies. Having mosquitoes and black flies around gives me real life models to try to copy. You can also save on fly tying material by gluing them to a hook.
6. A preventative for blushing: I happen to blush easily, usually when someone tells me how great I am. I remember the last time it happened, I was in second grade and boy, did I blush. The point here is blushing is caused by blood flowing to your surface skin. But if you have little to no blood because of black flies or mosquitoes you've solved that problem. You're welcome.
7. Aerate your clothing: Sometimes it gets awful hot in summer. That's when I'm thankful that our mosquitoes and black flies have punctured my clothing to let the air circulate through. Otherwise, I'd have to turn up the air conditioning or go for a swim.
8. Bat food: If you keep pet bat, it's nice to have mosquitoes and black flies around.
9. Save on sunscreen: These days sunscreen is a must when you are outdoors in summer. But if you don't like the feel or cost of these lotions it's OK. Just let a bunch of biting insects accumulate over you. Soon enough they'll provide all the shade you need.
10. A great practical joke: Want a great practical joke to play on a friend? How about the old "fill the pepper shaker up with black flies" gag? And when I say gag, I'm not kidding.

The point is we can turn our biting insects into a positive. Revenue Canada? Well, that's a bit harder.

Plant the right tree in the right place

Planting a tree this spring? Choosing the right tree and planting it in the right place can not only provide valuable shade and environmental benefits but can also save energy in your home.

Hydro One is providing five tips for planting a tree in the right place to stay safe and save energy.

1. Plant an appropriate distance from power lines. Tree contact with power lines accounts for about 30 per cent of power outages in Ontario. To ensure a safe and reliable supply of electricity, Hydro One keeps its rights-of-way and stations clear of vegetation that could grow into electrical equipment and interfere with safe access for maintenance or grounding.

2. Deciduous (leaf-shedding) trees provide shade from the summer sun to cut down on heat gain, but lose their leaves in winter to let sunlight enter your home and maximize solar warmth and light. Place them to the south and the southwest to provide shade from late afternoon/evening sun.

3. A good windbreak includes a mixture of coniferous trees, deciduous shrubs, evergreen shrubs and perennial plants. The right combination planted tightly together can thoroughly shield your home from cold winter gusts. Even a single row of white pine can reduce the speed of wind hitting your home by 60 per cent.

4. Low-growing evergreen shrubs planted beside basement walls add a green layer of insulation to your home's exterior. Tightly placed shrubs help to keep warmth in and winter winds out. Remember to plant shrubs at least 60 centimeters away from your foundation walls.

5. Call before you dig to locate underground lines. Call Ontario One Call to book 1-800-400-2255 or visit www.on1call.com.

Bancroft pets need foster homes

Home Again re-homed 100 dogs and 147 cats last year. The more fosters who volunteer to temporarily shelter these pets, the more pets can be re-homed. It is satisfying work. Home Again's newest dog foster Barb Sawdon says, "Each dog presents a new challenge and I learn and grow better at this work when they pass through my care. Puppies are the best, and they don't stay long! I have never felt happier having a fur-kid in my home. It brings me joy and my house is not so empty anymore. My only regret is not fostering sooner."

Cat foster Karen Reid says, "I needed something extra in my life and thought of fostering cats because I love them so. The first two cats I adopted myself – they were perfect and I could not give them up – but now I am working for the process of moving cats into their forever homes."

Every word counts

Don't wait until it is too late when it comes to a child's speech and language skills.

Local parents and caregivers are being given this advice by the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit. According to a health unit nurse, strong communication skills are essential for children's growth and development and future success, as these skills help them learn new things, including reading and writing.

"Every word counts when it comes to a child's speech skills," says Shelley Shaughnessy, a family health nurse with the HKPR District Health Unit. "Parents and caregivers need to play, talk, listen and read with youngsters to encourage and promote speech and language development."

The health unit is highlighting the importance of a child's speech and language development during Speech and Language Month in May. Throughout the month of May, Health Unit nurses will also be holding special speech and language celebration events at Ontario Early Years Centres (OEYC) across the area. Local families are asked to contact their local OEYC for more information.

Shaughnessy notes that approximately one in 10 Ontario preschool children will experience a communication delay, a discovery that can be a surprise to parents and caregivers. Some parents may think their child is just quieter than other children, or that his or her frustration over words will work itself out over time. In reality, these may be indicators of speech and language problems, she says. Other warning signs to watch for in children include: difficulty following directions, having a hard time being understood, relying on gestures to communicate, and not pronouncing words clearly.

"Some parents may ignore these warning signs, thinking the problem will fix itself," Shaughnessy adds. "Parents shouldn't delay, and instead should address any speech and language issues. If identified early enough, the problem can usually be addressed."

A good way for parents to assess a child's communication ability is by using the Ontario government's speech and language milestones for children up to the age of five years. The milestones and other resources are available at www.kidtalk.on.ca. People concerned about a child's speech and language development can also turn for assistance to the District Preschool Speech and Language Program by calling the health unit toll-free at 1-866-888-4577.

Allsaw church raising funds for missionary work in Dominican Republic

By Angelica Blenich

Need your house painted, a garden planted or your garage cleaned out?

Have some housework you've been putting off for years?

Allsaw Church has a team of professionals ready to work for you.

Located on County Road 21, Allsaw Church is organizing a new type of fundraiser to raise money for their missionary team's trip to the Dominican Republic, scheduled for later this year.

The fundraiser involves members of the missions team coming together to provide a work day for residents of the community.

The idea for the fundraiser came from church pastor Cathy Mitchell, who wanted to offer some of the skills within the church to the public.

"We have a lot of talent," she said. "We have professional painters, professional carpenters, gardeners, cleaners."

Scheduled for June 20, the work day will involve skilled professional labourers arriving at your doorstep to complete a project of your choice, whether that be painting, staining, fixing or building things, cleaning and much more.

The project can be large or small, which will help determine how many team members will arrive at your house. Supplies must be purchased ahead of time by the individual receiving the work.

The projects will be done at a reduced rate, with all proceeds going towards the mission team's work in the Dominican Republic. Large projects will cost $1,000, and smaller projects $500.

Mission team leader Marj Mieske is spearheading the fundraiser, and hopes it gains a lot of interest.

"I picked June 20 because we're coming right into summer," she said, adding it's a great time of year for planting and gardening work to get done.

For the past five years the missions team has been travelling annually to the Dominican Republic to bring much needed supplies such as food, clothing, toiletries and more to residents who are unable to afford these things.

"The funds [raised] will just be mixed in to what we do," said Mieske. "That's food for senior citizens, Christmas gifts for the kids at two schools or a work day project for one of the churches."

Over the years the missions team has grown from four to 13 people, all of whom have different favourite highlights and memories of past trips.

For some it is the Christmas party they throw that includes a visit from Santa Claus and gifts for all the children in attendance. For many of the children it is the only Christmas gift they will get that year.

"We organize presents for a school and we work all year long to get gifts prepared for children," said Sara Both. "They are very poor, it's a big deal for them ... the kids make it a very special day."

Other missionaries enjoy the smiles on the faces of children as they get a frozen treat from the team members during the annual freezie walk, where they pass out freezies to everyone they see.

Whatever the highlight may be, each team member feels like they have made a difference in the lives of those they meet in the Dominican Republic.

"You can't press enough how poor ... it's unbelievable poverty," said Mitchell.

Those interested in being selected for the fundraiser can contact Mieske at mmieske@bell.net with details of their project. Emails need to be sent no later than May 18.

Anyone in Haliburton County can apply for their project to be selected.

If selected for the fundraiser, Mieske will contact you to set-up a meeting to discuss the project further.

Haliburton ATV Season Openers

The Haliburton ATV season opens up this year with an exciting line-up of rides and events. Tune up your machines and get ready to ride the beautiful Highlands. Watch the land waking up from the winter fury, striving to attain the majestic beauty it achieves in summer and fall. Breathe deeply and take in the breathtaking views.

A two-day event on May 23 and 24 marks the third annual Deep Wood Safari taking place in Gooderham this year. Two days of riding local trails (lunches included), a delicious roast beef dinner on the eve of the first day and thousands of dollars' worth of prizes make this event very popular.

June 20 in Minden marks the day of the annual HATVA Mud Bog, an event held in conjunction with the Minden Kinsmen's Truck Pull and Shine. Once again cash prizes will attract true enthusiasts from around the province as well as local competitors. There will be a free youth training ride for children under 12 years old, emphasizing safe riding and handling of machines.

Check the Haliburton ATV website at www.haliburtonatv.com for registration details and for a list of rides for the rest of the season. There will be nine organized rides in all, including two poker runs, fundraisers for Stanhope and Highlands East.
